NEW OPPORTUNITIES

Have you ever worn a pedometer to monitor your physical activity and encourage a more active lifestyle? I wear an inexpensive pedometer on my belt. It currently reads 7338. That’s a good start for the day, since my minimum goal is 10,000 steps per day.

I find it encouraging to monitor my progress throughout the day, but there’s one thing about my pedometer that I don’t like: it returns to zero at the beginning of each day! However, I need to remind myself that yesterday’s effort is not wasted. It just means that today provides a brand new opportunity.

As we begin a new year here at Hope Channel, we are also facing some brand new opportunities:

• a Bible story program for children
• an interactive Bible study for young adults
• an lifestyle program especially for women
• life-changing health programs

Production for some of these exciting new programs is imminent. For other programs, we are still in the visioning stage.

I am particularly excited about a new interactive collegiate Bible study hosted by Justin Kim. The proposed title for this program is InVerse. Using a different curriculum than InVerse will encourage young adults to engage in an in-depth interactive study of the Word of God. I anticipate that Bible students of all ages will be blessed!

At Hope Channel we are committed to sharing the light of God’s Word in a relevant and practical way. Approximately 3000 years ago the psalmist wrote, “Your Word is a lamp to my feet and a light to my path” (Ps 119:105, NKJV). That testimony is still true today!

We frequently receive emails from viewers who are blessed as we study the Word of God together. Here is one from Avia, a Hope Channel viewer in Canada: “Greetings to you all in the mighty name of Jesus Christ, our soon coming King. I started watching Hope Channel about a year ago. I know it was not by accident but by divine intervention that I found this wonderful channel because I was living without hope. Keep doing the good work—it is not in vain.”

Do you know family members or friends who are living without hope? Let’s help more viewers like Avia find hope for a better life for today and for eternity. This new year will provide many fresh opportunities for ministry. Your support makes this life-changing ministry possible. Your prayers give us courage to listen attentively and follow wherever God leads. Your gifts provide resources to turn those new opportunities into realities. So let’s press on—together!

With thanks and prayers,

You make the Bible easy to understand. Thank you!
—Josh

I enjoy the timely and fact-based episodes of Go Healthy for Good and send my friends links to the shows. Since healing of the whole person is important, the spiritual connection that each program makes is essential because complete healing is the result of God’s power working in the life of the person on their journey from sickness to health.
—Richard

Kay and Steve Prins love watching Derek Morris’ Hope Sabbath School on Friday nights. Several months ago, as Derek was ending one of the classes he asked, “Is there anybody out there who finds special meaning in God’s promises?”

“I couldn’t help it,” Kay says, remembering how she felt the Holy Spirit compel her to share the promise in Psalm 61:1–4. “Derek wanted to know why. I said I was just sharing the gift of that promise.”

But with urging, Kay decided to share the story behind the promise.

The Prins’ son Philip was an Iraq veteran. With Kay growing up as a missionary kid in Japan, Steve coming from South Africa, and the family of three having lived in Taiwan for six years, traveling was in Philip’s blood. That was one reason why he joined the Army. Philip also hoped to earn an education. But when 9-11 happened, things changed. Philip served in Iraq for 13 months and upon returning to the United States, a victim of post-traumatic stress disorder, he searched for a life path.

He decided to study journalism at a small community college in southern California. He was a natural with the camera. Right away the school handed him a camera and said, “You’ll be working with the newspaper. We’d like you to be our photographer.”

Philip had never handled a professional camera before. But he quickly discovered that he really enjoyed photography. It was a way of looking at the world—and it was cathartic for him.

At the end of his education, Philip learned of a photography workshop at a university in the Philippines. “Once he got there, and got involved, I knew he was going to stay,” says Kay. “We supported him 100 percent. We were happy and excited to see him happy.

Kay’s message to Hope Channel viewers:

“When we are in crisis, whether it is an illness or an injury, and our heart’s desire is for things to get better and become whole again, our prayers are often directed that way—and sometimes God says ‘no.’ His choice for us is different from the one we want. And trusting His judgment becomes a challenge. That is not the easiest thing to do, but it is the most positive and comforting and greatest source of peace.”
working in the Philippines.” Philip found a niche—after the workshop he stayed on to volunteer at the university. He helped resurrect the school’s dead newspaper and taught photography and other classes. Philip was there two and a half years.

He was taking a walk in the early morning hours the day after Christmas 2015 when he was attacked by four men. They knocked him to the ground. Then they focused their blows on his head.

He was unconscious when they were finished. It is not clear, even today, what the motivation was—his wallet wasn’t touched.

God’s promises have not only given her the endurance to face tragedy, but they have also enabled Kay to forgive and pray for those responsible for her son’s death.

“We received the call from the small university hospital where he was taken,” remembers Kay. “An emergency room nurse called and wanted to know if they could operate. She said they were calling in a neurosurgeon. I’m a nurse and knew immediately that we were in big trouble.”

Kay immediately flew to the Philippines. After a stop at the police station, she went to the hospital, a compact, cement-walled structure. While the staff was well-trained and the surgeon was trained in the United States, the hospital had its limitations.

Kay recollects, “I saw Philip for the first time. He was unconscious and on a respirator. And I knew. The doctor told me, ‘subarachnoid hemorrhage—there is no hope for recovery. It is finished.’ And I knew it would be soon.”

Exhausted, Kay got on her knees and prayed: “Philip is in such a wonderful place in his life. I don’t know what his future holds. You do. You know what happened here and why. I just don’t know. I want him alive and whole. Philip won’t be happy unless he’s whole.”

As Kay prayed she was more and more confused. She wasn’t sure what to pray for, and how to pray.

Then the Holy Spirit spoke to her: “Let God make the choice.”

In an instant she prayed: “Lord, You make the choice. You know everything about Philip. You love him far more than I ever could.” Once that prayer was offered, Kay had total and complete peace—and she has had that same peace ever since.

“It’s almost a year since Philip’s death. And through her arduous journey God’s promises have not only given Kay the endurance to face tragedy, but they have also enabled her to forgive and pray for those responsible for her son’s death. One of the men was only 17 years old at the time. She says, “I pray for Philip’s attackers. My concern is that they have a chance—that God would see to it that they have a chance to know Him. And if that turns out to be the case, if they become acquainted with Him and learn to love Him, and give their hearts to Him, I could meet these men in heaven. And that would mean everything to me.”

Promise Claimed

Hear my cry, O God;
Attend to my prayer.
From the end of the earth I will cry to You,
When my heart is overwhelmed;
Lead me to the rock that is higher than I.
For You have been a shelter for me,
A strong tower from the enemy.
I will abide in Your tabernacle forever;
I will trust in the shelter of Your wings.
—Psalm 6:1–4
Christian Television in the Secular World

by Joe Sloan, Director of Cable Distribution

In 2012 Hope Channel began an all-out campaign to increase its reach in North America. An important part of the plan was to increase the distribution within the American cable industry.

Though we knew from the start that this type of outreach would be difficult, time consuming, and one that required much prayer, we understood that if Hope Channel were to reach the millions yet to hear about Jesus’ saving grace, we had to go where the televisions are. And in the United States almost 85% of TV households are cable connected.

During the four years since the start of this initiative, Hope Channel has learned much about presenting itself to the secular TV industry. We have also realized just how correct we were in thinking this was to be a difficult, time-consuming process that needed prayers. Along the way, there have also been many surprises.

Credibility in the Secular TV World

Generally speaking, secular TV executives do not like Christian television. The reason has little to do with Jesus, but more to do with the bad reputation many Christian channels have had for using their shows for personal financial gain. When scandal breaks about popular TV preachers enriching themselves with donations, it tarnishes the perception of other TV ministries. Although Hope Channel does not preach or practice “prosperity gospel” methods, we’re initially looked upon with suspicion.

However, once we explain that Hope Channel is about nothing else but Jesus and the transformed life He offers, skepticism turns into appreciation and support. We have discovered that it’s not Jesus with whom secular TV executives have concerns—it’s with some of the things many of us Christians do. When they understand that Hope Channel focuses on Jesus and not on a TV personality, and that the shows are about offering viewers options for a better life, they quickly see the benefit of having Hope Channel as a unique Christian television category. By genuinely caring for the well-being of people, Hope Channel is strengthening its credibility in the very secular world of television and changing the TV industry from skeptics to supporters.

Health Message Opens Doors

Regardless of one’s spirituality, nearly everyone is interested in health. Hope Channel’s health message opens closed doors, paving into the secular world a path of biblical truths. This makes Hope Channel somewhat unique among TV channels. Who else can genuinely say that their programs can create a longer, better life?

God is opening doors for Hope Channel and giving us favor in a strongly non-Christian TV industry. Only God knows the exciting future ahead of us, as we continue presenting the gospel to those that do not know.

During a one-on-one presentation about Hope Channel, a leading industry executive became abruptly silent when I began explaining Hope Channel’s whole-body health focus. It was a lengthy pause that had me perplexed. “Had I said something offensive,” I wondered.

After what seemed like an eternity, the executive ended the awkward silence by choking up and saying, “You don’t understand, I was diagnosed with cancer recently and no one has given me any hope. But what I am hearing from you today touches me and gives me encouragement that I can hope for a better future.”

I followed up by sharing copies of Hope Channel shows on biblical health principles and cancer treatment.
With the start of the new year more than 145 million Americans will make some sort of resolution. Many use this time to make changes that will improve their life in some way.

Take a look at the top ten resolutions from 2015:

1. Lose weight
2. Get organized
3. Spend less, save more
4. Enjoy life to the fullest
5. Stay fit and healthy
6. Learn something exciting
7. Quit smoking
8. Help others in their dreams
9. Fall in love
10. Spend more time with family

What’s surprising is that for all the positive resolutions we make every year, only eight percent of us will successfully keep our resolutions. In fact, one out of four people don’t even last a week!

As you begin 2017, consider making a resolution that will not only change your life, but will also improve the lives of others.

Pray for Hope Channel

Hope Channel covets your prayers—for its viewers and staff. Pray that viewers will be receptive to God’s calling while watching our shows. Pray for Hope Channel leadership and staff as we work together to create and broadcast these shows. Please pray because there is power in prayer and because prayer is something we can never have too much of!

Make Monthly Donations

Did you know you can schedule automatic monthly donations at hopetv.org/donate? Besides being easier on your budget, an automatic monthly gift provides a predictable, sustaining support to our ministry, making a significant impact on the lives of those who watch Hope Channel. Automatic monthly donations are also more efficient and cost effective than processing checks. Consider making an automatic donation today to further Hope Channel’s reach, both around the world and here in North America.

Share Hope Channel with a Friend

Without viewers there’s really no reason for Hope Channel to exist! We hear stories all the time about people who stumble upon Hope Channel (no doubt by divine intervention). Another way for people to learn of Hope Channel is through you—we love you telling your friends, family, co-workers, and neighbors about the life-changing shows you enjoy on Hope Channel. Sharing Hope Channel with others is an easy way to share Christ’s love!

Make a Planned Gift

Talking to an estate planner can help provide financial security for you and your family, lessen your tax burden, especially if you’re selling a business, and also further the ministry of Hope Channel. Because there are many different estate planning products, it is important to consult with a professional to help maximize benefits. To learn more, call Al Navarro at 888-339-PLAN (7526).

Strengthen Your Faith

Hope Channel’s mission is to share with everyone God’s good news for a better life. Every day lives are being changed, whether our viewers hear about a loving God for the first time or have known Him their entire life. Wherever they are on their spiritual journey, watching Hope Channel’s uplifting shows strengthens their faith in God and empowers them to have a better life—not just for today, but for eternity.

Meet Chris LeBrun

As Hope Channel’s fundraising director, Chris is the newest addition to our team. Learn more about him on page 12.
Four friends revive an age-old tradition from the days of Martin Luther and the Reformation.

Regardless of the century and generation, humans are the same in many ways. We are stimulated by good food, conversations, and the company of others. And Martin Luther was no different.

Luther was known for his “table talks” that brought his colleagues and him together to discuss challenging questions. It was a comfortable place where they could be honest, find support, and be blessed.

Now four friends from Light Bearers Ministry revive Luther’s table talk tradition on Hope Channel. And you’re invited to listen in on these conversations. Jeffrey Rosario, James Rafferty, David Asscherick, and Ty Gibson will discuss different topics every week.

The new year brings you new music programs from the students of Fountainview Academy. First will be the series, The Great Controversy, followed by Steps to Christ in Song and Help in Daily Living.

Inspired by the Reformation, The Great Controversy is a musical and historical journey through Europe. It Is Written’s John Bradshaw joins Fountainview Academy to host The Great Controversy, filmed in five different countries of Europe at historically meaningful sites. You’ll enjoy not only music, but also personal testimonies and powerful reformation stories. (6 episodes)

Steps to Christ in Song is based on the life-changing masterpiece Steps to Christ, which has brought inspiration to millions of readers worldwide since its first edition in 1892. This music program emphasizes that developing a relationship with Jesus is the most important thing you can do in life. (13 episodes)

Filmed in the natural beauty of Kauai, Hawaii, Help in Daily Living will lead you to a practical experience with Christ through music and personal testimonies. You’ll travel from ocean beaches to lush, delicate gardens as you listen to students share personal accounts of how the gospel has been made real in their own lives. (13 episodes)
Serving as Hope Channel’s director of fundraising is a unique fulfillment of years of preparation. Looking back, I am amazed at how God placed me exactly where I had to be to gather skills needed for where I am now.

I studied broadcasting in college, but sadly never had an opportunity to use those skills and knowledge. Fundraising is a field I fell into—and not one I chose. In hindsight, that was God’s plan! It began with a paid internship offer (Can a young man fresh out of college say no to anything with a paycheck?). The internship awoke in me an unexpected interest in philanthropy which led to 17 years of working with various non-profit organizations. Today, I can’t see myself in any other career. I’m humbled that God, in His infinite wisdom, has used Hope Channel to reconnect me with my love for broadcasting and a college degree I never got to use.

I love the interpersonal aspect of fundraising! I take donor relations very seriously—I make sure there is open communication with donors, and I look for ways to help connect their passion for media ministry with the goals of Hope Channel. Understanding each donor’s motives and dreams is very important to me, and I work hard to support them in their decision to make a difference. Fundraising is more about accomplishing goals and providing opportunities to give back than it is about simply asking for money. And I love giving the donors with whom I work a sense of purpose.

Hope Channel is uniquely placed to reach people around the world where many traditional ministries are often ineffective. The work that I do in the Silver Spring, Maryland office has impact across the globe—such as working with a donor to fund a new Hope Channel studio in Southeast Asia.

When I hear a story of how a viewer’s life was changed by watching Hope Channel, I am blessed because I see that as a result of the faithfulness of our donors. I am glad to be a part of a team that works together to change the lives of many with the love of Jesus.

Like many, you have probably been watching in dismay as your investments fluctuate wildly and your bank CD rates plummet to less than 1%. There isn’t much security in knowing that your financial future can be tossed around by every market whim.

The good news is that with a charitable gift annuity, you can receive a generous fixed income with payments made to you or your loved ones for life. Not only will you help Hope Channel further the gospel broadcast but you will also receive fixed income for your lifetime.

Now is the time to lock in a generous payout rate based on your age.
