Paul, the man who played an integral role in the formation of the early church, and Mark who wrote the first gospel would probably have no place in our Christian heritage had it not been for Barnabas.*

Barnabas—little-known and barely mentioned in the Bible—had the gift of identifying potential. Imagine the void in the Bible without Paul and John Mark. Paul wrote 13 of the 27 books of the New Testament—that is 31.57 percent of the New Testament, not counting Hebrews, that many believe he wrote. And John Mark authored Mark, the gospel that emphatically confirms the identity of Jesus as both Savior and man.

From the little we know of Barnabas, there are three characteristics that define him.

He was a philanthropist. Barnabas became a Christian on a pilgrimage to Jerusalem. He was so convicted of the needs of the early church that he immediately returned home, sold his possessions, and gave everything to the fledgling church to advance the cause of Christ (Acts 4:36, 37).

He was a risk taker. When many doubted Paul’s dramatic conversion, Barnabas accepted Paul’s conversion as genuine and introduced him to the church of Jerusalem (Acts 9:27). Later when he went to Antioch, he was moved by the Holy Spirit to stay there and minister to the growing church, where the believers were first called Christians. When the cosmopolitan city needed both a scholar and an evangelist, Barnabas brought Paul to the job despite his past and his reputation (Acts 11:19-26).

He was a mentor. Barnabas and Paul set out on their first missionary journey. They then invited John Mark to join them. Young and unaccustomed to hardship, John Mark became discouraged and returned home. Paul was very disappointed with John Mark and refused to give him a second chance. The dispute grew so contentious that Paul and Barnabas parted ways. Barnabas, however, gave Mark a second chance and included him in his ministry. Years later when Paul was in a Roman jail, he reviewed his ministry and recognized a possible error in his judgment over John Mark. He wrote to Timothy saying Mark could be of useful service to him. When Barnabas spotted talent, he both encouraged and nurtured, never giving up on people (Acts 12:25; 15:37-39; 2 Tim 4:11).

Church leader, financier, indefatigable evangelist, mentor, Barnabas played a crucial role in the advancement of early Christianity. I believe there are many little-known people even today who, like Barnabas, are Hope Channel champions. You pray for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit; you support Hope Channel with your finances; and you encourage others to watch. You see the potential of our media ministry; you are our Barnabas!

This issue of HopeLINK is filled with amazing reports of how God is expanding and using Hope Channel to reach millions. It is a “Barnabas Report.” Thanks for seeing potential and being a Barnabas!

Your friend,

Brad Thorp

I found Jesus through Hope Channel. I am the first Christian in my family. My parents, relatives, and community are not supportive of my choice to follow Jesus. Even my friends laugh at me. But even though I am going through a difficult time, what I am going through is just a little suffering compared to the joy I have found in Jesus. I live to share the joy I have in Jesus with others. May the Lord use Hope Channel to mend the lives of many.

I’ve started going to church again after 15 years because of Hope Channel. My eyes are now opened to God’s saving grace. My life has turned around and my wife and I are so much happier than we have been in a long time.

— Tom

I don’t get to church. So Hope Channel means the world to me. I just got a 1.5% raise at work and would like to pass that increase on to Hope Channel.

— Betty

Someone came into my bookstore because of something she saw on Hope Channel. Looking for books on health and the Bible, she said, “I need to get my life in order.” Praise God for the ministry of Hope Channel in New York City.

This hope we hold as the utterly reliable anchor for our souls, fixed in the very certainty of God himself in Heaven (Hebrews 6:19, J. B. Phillips).

How Real is Hope?

By Benjamin D. Schoun

Hope is tangible and visible. You can see it in the eyes of a hungry child just as much as you can see it in the eyes of a desperate man gripping a lottery ticket. All of us live hoping for something better than what we have—for a job that gets us out of poverty, for healing from some deadly disease, for relief from injustice, for life after death.

Hope keeps us motivated. It gets us through tough times. In fact, many feel it is an absolute necessity for survival. William Shakespeare thought so too when he said, “The miserable have no other medicine but only hope.”

There is no story more prominent of a person with reason to despair than that of Job. God allows the devil to take away from Job all of life’s blessing—his livestock, his wealth, his children, his own health. Commenting on the injustice being inflicted on Job, a friend asks, “Should not your piety be your confidence and your blameless ways your hope?” And Job answers, “Though He slay me, yet will I hope in Him.”

Job’s response reflects his belief that hope comes from something outside of himself—that it is anchored in the power of God and not in the things of this world. An anchor is not dropped in the hold of a ship; it is let down outside the ship to reach way down and touch what is firm and solid. In the same way, our hope must be anchored to something outside of ourselves—in God.

Hebrews 6:18 gives us reasons why we can have full confidence in God—“By two utterly immutable things, the word of God and the oath of God, who cannot lie, we who are refugees from this dying world might have a source of strength, and might grasp the hope that He holds out to us” (J. B. Phillips).

God’s Oath. When we take an oath, we call upon God, a higher, more dependable source and promise we will do our best to be honest and truthful. But God’s words are such an immutable guarantee that He need give us nothing more than His word. His reputation of steadfastness precedes even the creation of this earth. If fact, there is no reason for God to take an oath; we have ample evidence that He can be trusted. Yet God, in His infinite mercy, takes an oath so we may understand Him in the most human way possible that the hope He offers us is real and endures forever.

Surely, through God’s words and His oath, we have all the reasons we need to trust Him. And “since we have such a hope, we are [to be] very bold” (2 Corinthians 3:12). Without hesitancy and with confidence, we should share with others what God has done for us.

This is what Hope Channel is all about! It shares God’s news for a better life today and for eternity. Through its programs it offers a biblical perspective on our personal lives and on the happenings around us. Through its Bible-based approach, Hope Channel points to Jesus as the solution to all of life’s problems.

If you are a Hope Channel viewer, tell someone about Hope Channel and share your story of hope in Jesus. “No one whose hope is in [God] will ever be put to shame” (Psalm 25:3).

Ben Schoun, Vice Chair, Hope Channel, Inc.; Vice President, General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists
The gospel to me has always been about changed lives. As a young man I prayed one day with a preacher on my TV, and at that moment my life was forever changed. I’m not saying things just got better; I’m saying everything changed. I got off the floor that night as changed as I could possibly be. I never realized how free a person could be until Jesus set me free in front of my TV at 3 a.m. that morning.

That is, until one day in Nigeria a few years later.

As a Hope Channel employee, I have the blessed opportunity to travel to various places where Hope Channel is making a real difference in people’s lives. Since I began working at Hope Channel in 2003, I have been to many places and seen many things, but that day in that Nigerian prison blew me away!

More than a hundred inmates, incarcerated under very trying and difficult circumstances, were collectively singing and praising God with an unimaginable joy. Their conviction was undeniably genuine and their individual transformation was miraculous. They may have been locked in a prison behind high walls and barbed wire, but their hearts were freer that any free man I’d known. Their enthusiasm for Christ and their desire to share it were at least equal (and probably superior) to any Christian I’d known.

Things had not just gotten better for them; everything had changed for them. Their experiences were their personal versions of the Prodigal Son. To me and to others there, their stories have been shared and retold over the years—of how God can change lives forever.

Why were these men (and the women in an adjoining compound) so changed? Because they had personally encountered their Creator and accepted His promise of forgiveness. They were living proof that, “if the Son sets you free, you will be free indeed” (John 8:36, NIV). Standing there, in the company of some very hardcore criminals, I understood the meaning of true freedom. I understood how man could imprison the body, but God can free the soul!

How had these inmates heard the liberating message of the gospel? Because some weeks earlier Hope Channel came into the prison. A single TV in the middle of a common area was airing Hope Channel, and the inmates, first out of curiosity and then out of conviction, were spending hours every day listening to programs about God’s love. Where God’s message is, His power also is.

While Scripture says, “You shall not covet (Exodus 20:17, NIV),” I don’t think I am sinning by coveting their relationship with God. While I was both humbled and amazed by God’s power in that Nigerian prison, I quickly discovered that the situation there was not a fluke. Since then I have traveled to other places and witnessed similar results. In a Romanian prison, for example, I sat for more than an hour, listening to the warden tell of the wonderful things that were happening in his prison since the introduction of SperantaTV (Hope Channel Romania).

What I saw in all those prisons in Africa and Europe is why I am doubly excited about a new project Hope Channel has begun for American prisons. I am convicted and convinced that the same miraculous events I saw in Africa and Europe can also happen here in the United States. World governments and cultures may vary, but the needs of the human heart are universal. It is solely to meet these heart-felt needs that Hope Channel exists.

Just as in other nations, the incarcerated in America need to hear God’s message of transformation. They need to discover how, in a sudden, miraculous way, their lives can be changed and redeemed by Grace.

The first step in this initiative took place in a miraculous way. Without our asking, a large television network with a presence in thousands of prisons across the United States has allowed Hope Channel to “piggy-back” on their prison TV system. This means wherever they have a channel in a prison, Hope Channel can use their racks, wires, and distribution system without charge. All Hope Channel will need to fund is the equipment specific to Hope Channel, such as the satellite receiver. This offer cuts costs to a fraction. But, there’s more! In prisons where this network does not have a presence, Hope Channel has access to the company that supplies the expertise and experience this network uses to get into prisons. Praise God for his abundant blessings!

What an incredible opportunity for Hope Channel to very directly fulfill Jesus’ desire that we live our Christianity (Matthew 25:36). But to be successful, we need to work together. Would you like to take Hope Channel to a prison in your community? Email or write us about it, and be a part of changing the lives of many who desperately need to hear that God can indeed transform and free the hearts of the imprisoned. For God does not just make things better, He changes everything for the better!

ON THE ROAD THIS SUMMER

This summer you will find Hope Channel represented at various meetings. Additionally Hope Channel will be participating in the following two events:

Oshkosh, Wisconsin | August 11-16

Over 40,000 are expected to attend this international event where children ages 10-15 will meet for a week of worship, activities, and lots of fun. Based on the life of Daniel, the Old Testament prophet, the focus of this camporee will be on how to live in this world without conforming to it.

Hope Channel will be producing various segments for the event and broadcasting some of the presentations live to churches and communities whose children are not able to attend the event in person.

Geneva, Switzerland | July 7-12

The second of its kind, this conference will draw upon the research of experts from all over the world to focus on the subject of non-communicable diseases.

Hope Channel Germany will lead in the video production of this event and Dr. Nerida McKibben, Host of Go Healthy for Good, will both present as well as interview over a dozen guests that will later be aired on the show.

AN AMAZING ACCOMPLISHMENT IN BRAZIL

Novo Tempo TV (Hope Channel Brazil) is now on NET, the largest cable TV provider in Brazil, with 5.6 million subscribers and a potential audience of about 18 million. We give praise for this miraculous happening and are excited about the many, many more opportunities this gives us to share the message of Jesus’ love and grace.
Several partners in ministry came together to create the Biblical Village—a 10-day event in the heart of Bucharest. While most of the logistic and financial support for this event came from the Seventh-day Adventist Church, the project was organized by the AMiCUS Student Association and the Association “Pathfinders for the Future,” the Federation of Hebrew Communities in Romania, the Romanian Archery Federation, ADRA Romania, and the Mihai Ionescu High School in Bucharest.

Sprawled over a city block, the hands-on exhibit included authentic representations of Bible times. There were traditional houses, shops, and even “residents” wearing traditional clothing. Each piece of clothing was handmade just as they were in Jesus’ time. Activities for both adults and children drew many to the event. Among the daily visitors was also Hopey who offered photo opportunities with a great big smile.

Recent developments in the African television industry are presenting Hope Channel with amazing opportunities. With their move from analog to digital broadcast, the governments of all African countries will be distributing national channels by DTT (digital-terrestrial-transmission) and making set-top boxes available for a nominal fee. This will allow everyone with a box free access to the new digital platform using analog televisions. This will also allow channels with local programming such as Hope Channel to be carried alongside the national channel and gain coverage throughout the countries.

Kenya has led the continent in this digital rollout and Hope Channel International has been included on their digital platform. Malawi and Tanzania will be next, with many other countries joining them.

Requirements vary from country to country in regards to the percentage of local content required. Development of local content is a strength of Hope Channel as we have always encouraged the concept of thinking global, but living local. Additionally, Hope Channel International provides a 24/7 feed of programming with the flexibility of inserting as much local content as wanted.

This opportunity for Hope Channel to be on the African digital platforms is time-sensitive. With the likelihood of many local TV channels competing for the same platform, it is essential for Hope Channel to secure its place in every country in Africa as quickly as possible.

Also noteworthy is the birthday celebration of seven-year-old Speranta TV, aka Hope Channel Romania! Both real and virtual cake were had by all across the network of more than 25 Hope Channels worldwide!

April 17 Hope Channel Tanzania inaugurated their new channel in Kiswahili. Over 10,000 were in attendance.

A new television studio opened in Malawi for programming in Chichewa. The official launch of Hope Channel Malawi is scheduled for late June.
